

Piece together your inner scientist.

Many of the science concepts and skills you're learning work hand in hand with the life skills you need to become a skeptical, curious, evidence-based thinker.

Make sure you're piecing together these important life skills so you're capable of making decisions that improve your life and the lives of those living in your community.

Amplify.